Welcome!

To search, please enter your query in the search box above. If you'd like to immediately browse works, editions, or translations, take a look at the limiting fields to the right. The numbers in the 'Browse by' lists represent not physical volumes but works, the texts seen as artistic creations, for example Homer's Iliad, or Livy's History of Rome. A work can span multiple volumes or a single volume could contain multiple works. To browse authors, please see this list.

The 'All Fields' search will query the full text of each catalog record and return results that are ranked by relevance. Frequently, your desired record may appear a few pages into the search results. To narrow your results you can use the 'Browse by' fields in the sidebar, or you can search using one of the additional search fields. For further details on the search field behaviors, please see this page.

Our Mission

1. To publish and curate critical editions of Latin texts, of all types, from all eras
2. To facilitate the finding and, where openly available and accessible online, the reading of all texts written in Latin

We use the word "library" to describe our project because that word's many meanings apply to what we're building:

- a series of volumes published according to a uniform standard
- resources for reading and working with texts
- and a catalog of texts and resources

Support the future of papyri.info!

Papyri.info has two primary components. The Papyrological Navigator (PN) supports searching, browsing, and aggregation of ancient papyrological documents and related materials; the Papyrological Editor (PE) enables multi-author, version controlled, peer reviewed scholarly curation of papyrological texts, translations, commentary, scholarly metadata, institutional catalog records, bibliography, and images.

Papyri.info aggregates material from the Advanced Papyrological Information System (APIS), Duke Databank of Documentary Papyri (DDbDP), Heidelberger Gesamtverzeichnis der griechischen Papyrusurkunden Ägyptens (HGV), Bibliographie Papyrologique (BP), and depends on close collaboration with Trismegistos, for rigorous maintenance of relationship mapping and unique identifiers. Work is in progress to incorporate content from the Arabic Papyrological Database (APD) as well. ...read more.

Coins and seals

Roman Provincial Coinage online

The Roman Provincial Coinage project embodies a new conception of Roman coinage. It presents for the first time an authoritative account of the coins minted in the provinces of the empire and shows how they can be regarded as an integral part of the coinage minted under the Roman emperors.

The aim of this major research project is to produce a standard typology of the provincial coinage of the Roman Empire. This represents the first systematic treatment of the civic coinage at the height of the Roman empire. The material presented is an invaluable source of information for imperial portraiture and titulature, the response of the cities to the establishment of a new political order under the Roman empire, the way the government controlled the provinces, the internal history of the cities, and the role of the provincial coinage in the economy of the Roman empire as a whole. It will thus not only meet the needs of numismatists but will also be an essential reference book for historians, epigraphists, archaeologists and other students of the Roman empire.

The publication of Roman Provincial Coinage volume I (44 BC–AD 69) in 1992 marked the start of this international initiative, which will comprise ten volumes in all. Roman Provincial Coinage is published by British Museum Press and the Bibliothèque Nationale de France, and the online publication is based in the Ashmolean Museum, University of Oxford.
